EDWIN C. SUTTOR,

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—Perceiving an advertisement in this day's Herald, requiring twenty pair of sawyers at 5s. per hundred, 24 inches and under, over 24 inches, 6s.,—I beg leave to say such an advertisement is calculated to mislead those who are unacquainted with the differences between the operative sawyers and their employers; and is likely to induce men from their constant employment in the interior, to become the dupes and slaves of those who think to monopolise our labour; the greater part of those employers have themselves been sawyers; they know well we ask for nothing but our just and lawful wages. Some of those men a short time ago were beholden to their day's wages as we are, and were the leading men to look for their rights, but have now raised themselves above the common level by their extortions, &c., on sawyers; and now, forsooth, refuse to pay us our just and lawful wages. It is freely admitted by every honest-meaning man that we ask for nothing more than is barely sufficient to support ourselves and families. It is well known that our work is the most laborious in the colony; the greater part of us exposed to the inclemency of the weather and inconstant work,—perhaps a week in work and two out; so by this when in work we must work hard to pay our debts, and provide if possible for the time we will be idle. Under these circumstances, Gentlemen, we have put our mites together, and opened a first-rate cedar yard, and trust to a discerning public for a liberal support.

N.B.—Cedar can be supplied at the Operative Wood Sawyers' Yard 20 per cent. cheaper than any other yard in Sydney. Orders completed at the rate of 2000 feet per day for cash. All orders most punctually attended to.

Employers can be supplied with the best workmen on application to the Superintendent of the yard, Davies's Wharf and Market Wharf.

Sydney, July 3. 178

TO THE CREDITORS IN THE INSOLVENT ESTATE OF MICHAEL GANNON.

GENTLEMEN,—Previous to the last sale of my property on the 27th May ultimo, I made an offer to the Official Assignee of my estate to pay 2s 6d. in the pound, or £1000 in cash, and all monies that were in his hands, (being aware that since the last dividend of 2s. 6d. in the pound was declared that he has received £1000 as follows: £750 for a mill at Darlinghurst, and £250 from J. S. Hanson,) or that Mrs. Gannon and her trustees would take from three or more of the principal creditors an offer of such amount as they might consider her entitled to, by giving up her claim and delivering over to them the property now in her possession, and about which the new trial has been granted, for the purpose of putting a stop to the present law proceedings, which are not only ruinous to my family but are consuming the estate: I now, gentlemen, earnestly request that you will be pleased to attend the adjourned meeting to be holden on Tuesday, the 6th instant, at eleven o'clock.

I beg to inform you that at the said meeting circumstances will be brought to light that it is almost impossible for you to imagine.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your humble obedient servant,
165 MICHAEL GANNON.

I have the honour to remain,
Ladies and Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,

At home from eight to ten A. M.

Mr. J. might add oculist to his other qualifications, having attended the Opthalmic Institution, Moorfields, for three years, twelve months of which, after obtaining his diploma, he devoted entirely to the practical part of that branch of the profession, but diseases of the eye being so well understood by every skilful and educated surgeon, it would be quite superfluous. 157

PAINLESS TOOTH DRAWING.

MR. J. EMANUEL, Examined Surgeon Dentist, having the most complete apparatus in the colony for inhaling the Sulphuric Ether, begs most respectfully to inform the public of New South Wales, that he continues with success to extract teeth and the most difficult stumps without pain to the patient. The faculty and others are invited to view the simple but perfect apparatus. Mr. Emanuel continues to preserve teeth from decay, also to supply artificial teeth, from one to a complete set, having a large collection of mineral teeth of all colours. The mineral being composed of indestructible fossils, never change their colour or become offensive to the wearer. Mr. E. cautions the public generally to observe that artificial teeth made of any other material, such as bone or natural teeth, break and decompose. Charges strictly moderate. Specific for the tooth ache—The most valuable remedy ever discovered in this colony for the tooth ache is undoubtedly this tincture, prepared solely by Mr. J. Emanuel, No. 345, Castlereagh-street North. It is sold in bottles at 2s. 6d. per bottle; large size bottles for families residing in the interior five shillings per bottle. It is only necessary to apply one drop of this tincture on a small piece of prepared wool, into the cavity of the affected tooth, and the pain will be instantly removed. Mr. E.'s cement for stopping decayed teeth, the properties of which are only known to himself: it prevents pain if stopped in time, and answers when any other kind of stopping has failed, such as gold leaf, &c.; children's teeth particularly attended to, and malformation of the mouth prevented. Soothing syrup for infants teething: one or two drops rubbed well on the gums with the finger, will relieve the irritation consequently arising from first dentition: sold in bottles at 2s. 6d. per bottle. Mr. Emanuel's diploma, received from the Medical Board of the Hague, in the year 1836, authorising him to practise as Surgeon Dentist, also his specimens of artificial mineral teeth, mounted in pure gold, can be seen daily. All consultations free of charge. French tooth brushes of a very superior description.

At home from 9 A. M. till 6 P. M.

THANKS FOR THE PAST AND HOPES FOR THE FUTURE.

H. HAYES, TAILOR AND DRAPER, 416, George-street, returns his sincere thanks to his friends and the public of the colony generally, for the extraordinary patronage bestowed upon his establishment during his visit to England, and begs to assure them that, in order to merit a continuance of the same, he has made arrangements with several wholesale houses in England for a periodical supply of first-rate goods, suitable to the wants and wishes of the gentlemen of the colony.

He has also secured the services of a foreman of great experience and undoubted talent, from one of the first houses at the West End of London, just arrived per Woodbridge, which, together with increased attention, punctuality, and furnishing a good article at a remunerative profit, he is confident will secure to him that kind patronage which, for the last ten years has stamped his establishment as the first and best in the colony.

PROMOTION OF THE FINE ARTS.

A VERY laudable spirit having of late been displayed in this colony to foster and encourage colonial artists, take leave to suggest to its patrons that one method of doing so, is open to the public by the purchase of their blacking, they having lately gone to a very great expense in procuring from the most talented artist in wood-cutting in this colony, Mr Thomas Clayton, a new label for it, which for style and execution they challenge against any similar production from the mother country.

J. V. LAVERS, AND CO.

J. V. L. and Co. respectfully request private families to give their blacking a trial, and to instruct their servants to enquire for it at the stores from which they are supplied; or if not to be procured, to send to the manufactory, 335, George-street, opposite the Old Burial Ground, where it can be obtained retail until the article becomes permanently established.

To prevent mistakes the label referred to contains a view of their manufactory, together with a fac simile of Mr. Lavers's handwriting.

SHIPS' MAILS.

Mails will be closed at the Post Office, as follow:—

FOR LONDON.—By the Union, (P. O. P.); and Harponeer, this evening, at 6.

FOR MELBOURNE AND LAUNCESTON.—By the steamer Shamrock, this afternoon, at 3.

FOR CALCUTTA AND ENGLAND.—(Overland)—By the Centaur, on Monday evening, at 6.

FOR AUCKLAND.—By the John Bull, this evening at 6.

VESSELS FOR LONDON.—The Union will sail early this morning. The Harponeer is expected to resume her voyage for Swansea and London to-morrow. The Ann Bates and Princess Royal will sail about the 15th instant. The Thomas Arbuthnot is now taking in cargo, and the Caernarvon will commence about the end of the ensuing week.

The Calypso has made a very good run of forty-five days from Batavia. The steamer with the English mails having arrived there from Singapore two days before she sailed, we are placed in possession of English news by her to the 25th March. We regret, however, that in the papers with which we have been favoured no shipping connected with these colonies is given. There were no vessels laid on at Batavia for this port when the Calypso sailed. She reports having spoken the brig City of Sydney, hence for Launceston the 21st ultimo, off Cape Howe on Monday last—and on Wednesday passed a schooner off the Dromedary, supposed to be the Thomas Lord, hence the 26th ultimo.

H. M. S. Dido, 20, Captain Maxwell, sailed from Singapore for New Zealand about the end of April. The schooner Minerva, Reid, arrived at Singapore from Adelaide on the 28th April, the schooner Vixen, from Swan River on the 30th, and the brig Scout from the same port on the 1st May.

The cargo of the Ann consists of 29 casks coconut oil, 9 tuns sperm oil, 400 mats sugar, 10 barrels salmon, 3000 coconuts, and 9 barrels slush. She brings a few days later news from Tahiti than that received by the Falcon, but nothing particular had transpired after the departure of that vessel. The Uranie, frigate, and two French steamers were lying there when the Ann sailed. The following whalers were at Upolu on the 31st May:—Henry Astor, American ship, Coffin, thirty-one months out, with 1400 barrels sperm oil; Christopher Mitchell, American ship, Acly, twenty-two months out, with 1700 barrels sperm; Mount Vernon, American ship, thirty months out, with 1200 barrels oil; Frolic, of London, thirty-nine months out, with 1100 barrels sperm. The Ann has not spoken any vessels on the passage up.

The Joseph Albino brings but little news from Adelaide; the Dorset, hence the 7th ultimo, had not arrived there when she sailed.

ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.

Howson; Albert, Madame Torning; Emma, Mrs. Guerin; Agnes, Mrs. Ximenes. After which, the laughable Farce of THE SPECTRE BRIDEGROOM; OR, A GHOST IN SPITE OF HIMSELF. Nicodemus, Mr. Spencer; Paul, Mr. F. Howson; Dickory, Mr. Griffiths; Lavinia, Mrs. Guerin; Georgiana, Madame Carandini. To conclude with a Comic Pantomime entitled THE FAIRY OF THE CORAL CAVE; OR, HARLEQUIN AND THE MAGIC PANCAKE. William, afterwards Harlequin, Signor Carandini; Giles Batterhead, afterwards Pantaloon, Mr. Riley; Dame Batterhead, afterwards Clown, Mr. Torning; Cinnamon, afterwards Columbine, Madame Torning.

THE ENGLISH NEWS.

THE extra sheet which we issued yesterday afternoon will have put our readers in possession of English news to the 25th March; but it must be remembered that we are without any intelligence whatever for the previous fortnight—from the 24th Feb. to the 8th March, the Home News being a fortnightly publication, published at the end of the first and third week of every month; and the number that has arrived in Sydney contains the news from the 8th to the 25th March only. Being published expressly for circulation in India, the Home News contains no shipping nor commercial intelligence unless it relates to India,—we are therefore without any information relative to the prices of wool, or the sailing or arrival of ships connected with these colonies.

Parliament would adjourn for the Easter recess from the 1st to the 14th April.

Nothing is to be done for emigration, although the people are said to be dying of starvation at the rate of two hundred a day. Lord JOHN RUSSELL has announced that beyond a small sum to assist in removing emigrants from Quebec and Montreal into the interior, no money is to be expended on emigration purposes.

Mr. O'CONNELL had been seriously ill. He had partially recovered, and was about to proceed to the Continent; but it was supposed that he would not be again able to take any part in public life.

We observe no notice of the death of any person of note.

MR. WINDEYER'S LIBEL ACT.

PERHAPS there is no part of the law, which—up to the time of the passing of the late Libel Act in England—had fallen so far behind the wants of society, as the law of Libel, and Slander. In a country which possesses a constitution giving the people at large a control over the actions of those who administer public affairs,—and where indeed power, and responsibility for its exercise is the rule, or supposed rule prevailing throughout all the ramifications of society, it is absolutely necessary that there should be freedom of the Press, commensurate with the calls which must always in such a state of things, be made for its expression. To a certain extent, and of necessity, the law, even before the passing of the Act in question, was approximated to the circumstances of society, by the decisions of Judges, or what BENTHAM called "Judge made law." Thus what has in many cases been called reasonable and temperate strictures upon public men and measures, bonâ fide statements made by masters and mistresses of the characters of domestic servants, words spoken in their place, by members of Parliament, and bonâ fide complaints of public officials, were for the good of the public privileged, and could not expose parties to any legal liability. So far so good. But this being granted, there were still, until the passing of the Act we have mentioned, absurdities, inconsistencies, and other imperfections of the law of libel and slander, which deservedly drew down upon it the ridicule and contempt of every intelligent and enlightened man. As a libel had been defined by Lord MANSFIELD,—and not very inaccurately, as "anything expressed either by written words, by pictures, or by signs, which hurt a man's feelings," it was very difficult to write disapprovingly of any man's conduct, without writing a libel. To expose wickedness, or show up incapacity, was in most cases to make yourself amenable to the libel law. Whether you benefitted society by exposing the villany of some wholesale quack who flourished upon a profitable but destructive patent pill, or by a timely disclosure broke up and defeated some gigantic confederacy of swindlers about to victimise as many of the commercial class as they could take at one haul, you acted with almost as much risk of loss to yourself, considering the difficulties of making out by legal proof the truth of your statements, when you were put to make them good in a Court of law, as if you had attacked a totally innocent person. The bare legal right of pleading and proving the truth of the libel in any given case, was, from this very difficulty of proof, a difficulty arising not merely from the strict rules of judicial evidence, but also from the hazards of failing to discover evidence, or losing it when discovered,—little more in practice, than a seeming advantage in a large majority of cases. For one plea of justification that was proved, there were a dozen, which, notwithstanding their truth, defendants failed to prove. And, therefore, nothing was more common than the defeat and punishment of defendants, for publishing statements universally admitted to be beneficial to the public at large. The proprietors of the London Weekly Dispatch, had to pay damages and costs for denouncing the vendors of MORRISON's pills,—although several of these persons were actually found guilty of manslaughter for selling these pills. The proprietors of the Times shared the same fate, for nobly exposing the contemplated fraud of a gang of swindlers, and failing afterwards to prove all they had alleged. We might, with reference to the foolish strictness, and technicalities of this part of our law, fill our paper with instances, of wrong and injustice committed according to law. But we hasten to notice the provisions of the new measure, which Mr. WINDEYER has, (with some unessential alterations) introduced into the Council, and for which he well deserves the thanks of the community in general, and of newspaper proprietors in particular.

By the first clause, (introduced in Committee) the same law is made applicable to oral as to written slander, thus doing away with the absurd distinction which now exists between these two classes of cases. By the present law of libel, to call a respectable woman unchaste is not actionable—to write of her the same thing is a libel, and actionable. The reasons given by the books for this distinction are, that written words indicate more deliberate malice—travel further, and have a greater tendency to cause a breach of the peace than words spoken, and, therefore, as the one case for the reasons alleged is not likely to work as much injury as some other case, it shall not have any remedy at all. This absurdity is put an end to by the clause above mentioned.

By the second clause, also introduced in Committee, it is enacted that the jury may in an action for defamatory words consider, under the general issue, whether they were spoken on an occassion "when the plaintiff's character was likely to be injured thereby, and find for the defendant if they should not be of opinion, that the words were spoken upon such an occasion." This also appears to us to be a reasonable provision. The third clause enacts that defendants may under regulations therein contained, give an apology in evidence in mitigation of damages. The fourth clause appears to us to be of more questionable merit. It provides that the truth of matters charged shall not be a defence unless the defendant pleads and proves that they were published for the public benefit, and also sets out in his plea, the facts by reason whereof it was for the public benefit that the said matters charged should be published. We are inclined to think the truth should be a defence all the world over; and that the truth, in the long run, is always for the public benefit. By the present clause, we should have a perpetually varying Court of Conscience in the Jury-box, as to what statements of facts were or were not for the public benefit,—a Court of Conscience always likely to be more or less involuntarily swayed by partialities and prejudices, especially in a country like this, where parties are generally known to the tribunal. We are not unmindful of the learned framer's former arguments upon this clause, in which he contended that many charges may be truly brought,—maliciously brought,—of no use to the public, and therefore indefensible. In much of this we may concur, and yet deny the conclusion the learned framer would draw—a conclusion which appears to us to be a short-sighted one. Which is the more probable, that a malicious man would make himself obnoxious to the general censure of society, by publishing a defamatory matter entirely for the gratification of his own malignant feelings? or that injustice may be done by leaving every Jury to say, in each individual case, what statements of facts are likely to benefit the public?

The fifth clause settles that which at present is unsettled, by declaring that faithful and accurate reports (not of an obscene or blasphemous nature) of judicial proceedings shall be privileged from legal liability.

The sixth clause is a very important innovation upon the old law,—allowing a defendant to plead that a libel was inserted without malice, and without gross negligence in the publisher, and also allowing him to apologise, and to pay money into Court, in satisfaction of the cause of action.

Upon this judicious and beneficial alteration, and upon the residue of the Act, we shall take an early opportunity of offering more extended observation. For the present we shall only say, that we hail this Act as one of the most desirable measures that has ever been submitted to the consideration of the Council.

MR. UNDER SHERIFF PROUT'S PETITION.

HAVING trusted merely to memory, when writing the article on Mr. Under Sheriff PROUT's Petition, we find we were incorrect in supposing as therein stated, that the Bill taking away the responsibility of the Sheriff, was introduced by that officer. It appears that he was not in the House at the time, and that the Bill was introduced by Mr. LOWE. We are therefore happy to correct these non-essential errors, and for the credit of the colony, shall feel much happier if we can be placed in a position which will enable us to say we were wrong in contending that the Sheriff did nothing, and was responsible for nothing to the public, in return for the thousand a-year he receives from the public taxes.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

FRIDAY.

THE SPEAKER took the chair at the usual hour.

THE SHERIFF.

Mr. COWPER gave notice that on Tuesday next he would move, that an address be presented to his Excellency the Governor, requesting that his Excellency will be pleased to cause to be laid upon the table of this House, copies of any despatches from the Right Honorable Secretary of State, ratifying the appointment of A. W. Young, Esq., to be Sheriff of the colony, or having reference to the terms upon which that gentleman was appointed to the office. And also of any correspondence between the colonial Government and the Sheriff in the years 1844 and 1845, respecting the remuneration of the Under Sheriff, and the arrangements consequent upon the refusal of the Council to add a supplement to Schedule A.

THE UPSET PRICE.

Mr. ROBINSON moved, at the request of Mr. Foster, that the motion standing on the paper in the name of Mr. Foster, for Tuesday next, might be postponed until Friday next, the 9th July.

THE DREDGING MACHINE.

Mr. COWPER wished to ask a question of his honorable friend the Colonial Secretary, to whom he had given notice of his intention, if any instructions had been given for the withdrawal of the dredging machine from the Hunter River. Last year they had been told that the machine would not be required there for above six months, but it was still there, to the great detriment of the Sydney harbour.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY said, that the work on which the dredging machine had been engaged was nearly completed, when the machine would be returned to its employment in Sydney Cove. He had had a communication from the Portmaster at the Hunter, under whose charge the machine had been placed, stating that vessels were now enabled to proceed up the river at times of the tide which had been previously considered impracticable.

Mr. WINDEYER hoped the Colonial Secretary would excuse him for putting a question on the same subject, although he had not given the usual notice of his intention to put it. He wished to be informed if the arrangements which had been made with the Australian Agricultural Company with respect to the dredging machine, included the cleaning out of the northern passage. It would be very desirable that this passage should be made available for navigation before the machine was removed, as otherwise the navigation of the river would sometimes become very embarrassing.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY said, the report made to him on the subject was to the effect that all that was necessary had been done, but whether the clearing of this passage was included with all that was necessary, he (the Colonial Secretary) could not take upon himself to say.

RELIGION AND EDUCATION.

Mr. GRANT begged leave to postpone the motion standing in his name until a future day.

MELBOURNE BUILDINGS.

Mr. ROBINSON, pursuant to notice, moved for leave to bring in a Bill for regulating buildings and party walls, and preventing mischiefs by fire, in the town of Melbourne. The Bill, he said, had been drawn up by the Corporation of Melbourne, who considered such a measure was rendered in the highest degree necessary in consequence of the great number of weather-board buildings which had been and were erected in that town. It had been framed almost entirely from the enactments for a similar purpose in London and Sydney.

Leave having been granted, the Bill was read a first time; ordered to be printed, and to be read a second time on Tuesday week.

HAWKERS AND PEDLARS.

Mr. DANGAR moved for leave to bring in a Bill to alter and amend the laws relating to hawkers and pedlars, and for licensing common carriers, in New South Wales, and for preventing the carrying and illegal sale of fermented and spirituous liquors by hawkers, pedlars, and carriers, and the purchasing by them (except from the owner thereof) of wool, tallow, sheep or lamb skins, and cattle or horse hides. In introducing this Bill to the notice of the House he felt it necessary to observe that the law under which hawkers and pedlars were now licensed was one of old standing, having been passed in the year 1834, but the altered circumstances of the colony rendered an alteration necessary. In the year 1844 the hon. and learned member for Sydney introduced a Bill having a similar object in view, which passed all its stages in that House, but did not receive the royal assent in consequence of a difference of opinion between the Government and that House as to the appropriation of the fines to be imposed by authority of that Bill. That objection, however, no longer existed, a Bill having since passed which set the question at rest. The Bill he had now the honour of proposing varied in one or two matters from the present law, but most of the clauses were verbatim with the before mentioned Bill. Among the alterations, he would mention that at present pedlars were at liberty to travel throughout the colony, but he proposed to confine them to the counties or the police districts in which they obtained their license rendering another license necessary if they carried their trade beyond that limit. In reference to the preventing of hawkers from carrying or selling spirituous or fermented liquors, the law as it at present stood seemed to be very stringent, but it was well known that in the distant parts of the colony, much disorder and inconvenience arose from their supplying the servants of the settlers with the means of intoxication. He proposed also to raise the price of a hawker's or pedlar's license to £4 instead of £1. There was another numerous class of persons whom he wished also to bring within the operation of the present Bill—those who carried goods from the sea coast to the interior, and produce from the interior to the place of shipment. He thought it would be an improvement if they, as well as the hawkers and pedlars, should be compelled to take out a license at some Court of Petty Sessions, where a registration would be made of their names and places of abode, and the production of their license would afford some kind of assurance both to the settlers and the merchants that they were parties to whom their property might safely be entrusted. He would also render it unlawful for either carriers or hawkers and pedlars to have in their possession any spirituous liquors, except as their lading, for which they must produce a note from the party transmitting it; or, not having such bill of lading, any constable shall be authorised to seize such spirituous liquors, and the carrier or hawker be subjected to pains and penalties for having them illegally in possession. Owing to the scarcity of store accommodation in the interior, it was well known that wool, tallow, hides, skins, &c., were very seldom, if ever, kept under lock and key, and were consequently exposed to depredation by dishonest servants, who frequently bartered such property for supplies from hawkers on the road. He had introduced a clause prohibiting the purchase of wool, tallow, hides, &c., from any person but the actual owner thereof. He thought that on the whole the Bill would be found applicable to the present wants of the colony, and would therefore move for leave to introduce it.

Mr. WENTWORTH seconded the motion.

Mr. COWPER thought that the evils complained of by the honorable member in introducing this measure were greater than could be surmounted by any legislative measure. He thought it would save a great deal of time, and the object would be as well attained, if the Bill were again introduced which they had before passed, but for which, in consequence of the differences existing as to the appropriation of the fees, penalties, &c., they could not then obtain the Royal assent.

Mr. WENTWORTH said, that the Bill alluded to was incorporated in the present—the only new clauses being those which had been particularly alluded to by the honorable member who brought it forward.

The Bill was then received, and read a first time, ordered to be printed, and to be read a second time this day fortnight.

JURY BILL.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL moved that the petition from Berrima, in reference to the Jury Bill now before the House, be printed.

The AUDITOR-GENERAL seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

CIRCULAR QUAY BILL COMMITTEE.

The COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS moved, that the name of Francis Lord, Esq., be, with the concurrence of that gentleman, struck from the Circular Quay Bill Committee.

The AUDITOR-GENERAL seconded the motion.

Mr. LORD stated that he was desirous that his name should be removed, because he found it was generally supposed that he had an interest in some of the property contiguous to the Circular Quay, and for the taking of which compensation would be recommended by the Committee.

The motion was put and carried.

LAW OF LIBEL.

Mr. WINDEYER moved that the Law of Libel Bill be read a second time. As he had explained the nature and objects of this Bill when he first introduced it, he should not detain the House with any remarks, further than to state the matter of the clauses he proposed to introduce into the Bill with regard to sureties. He was not prepared when he introduced the Bill, to lay before the Council these clauses, but he had since had an opportunity of conferring on the subject with the proprietors of the four leading papers of Sydney, and he was happy to state that the whole of them on that occasion concurred in approval of having the English law in its entirety, introduced into the colony. They thought that cases like that of Captain O'Connell should be avoided, and saw no difficulty in obtaining the requisite sureties. They however suggested that a clause should be introduced, which would provide against the necessity for a second action, under which the plaintiff in an action on obtaining a verdict might go upon the sureties at once. He must however state, that he did feel surprised, when he received on the following day, a letter from one of the parties, revoking the opinions he had expressed on the previous day, and enclosing a document for his reasons, which he supposed had been prepared as a leading article, in which he (Mr. Windeyer) was charged with a design to subvert the liberty of the press, and accusing him of political trickery in bringing forward the measure. If, however, that party thought he should be deterred in the course he had adopted by such an attack, he was pitiably mistaken. Such loose fires might burn up the young sapling, but they would not affect the old standard trees of the forest. The shame and indecency of such a cause could only excite his contempt, for he deemed himself proof against such paper pellets. It was only one instance to the too prevalent rule, that do what you will to serve any man, you must expect to be repaid with ingratitude. When he came, however, to consider how the clauses respecting these sureties should be framed, he found it extremely difficult to frame clauses that could not be as easily evaded as the present law. He had, therefore, after some consideration, adopted a medium course, and had endeavoured to make the present law more stringent and effective. He believed at present that most of the papers which it was necessary should enter into securities not to publish blasphemous and indecent libels really had not entered into such securities. To remedy this defect, he had framed two clauses. The first of these provided that a party should, on obtaining a verdict, at his own risk issue execution on the types and press actually used in printing such libel. Some people might think that this was the law now, but it was not so in effect. The press and types were required to be registered; but it happened often that they were not registered in the real proprietor's name, but some man of straw was put forward to stand the brunt of the battle, and give the real owner time to escape, and thus it was found that before the aggrieved party could obtain a remedy, a second action against the real printer had to be brought. He had introduced this clause with a view to prevent this. It had been suggested that some clause should be introduced to prevent the transfer of these materials; but he had hardly thought this necessary. The second clause provided that no printer or proprietor of a newspaper or other publication should enjoy any of the benefits of the Act unless he had complied with all its requirements; and this he hoped would have the effect of causing all parties to enter into the required securities. If their intentions were honest and correct they could not object to do so, and if not, they did not deserve to share in the benefits of the Act. He would now move that the Bill be read a second time.

Mr. ROBINSON seconded the motion.

The Bill was read a second time, and ordered to be considered in committee on Tuesday next.

HACKNEY CARRIAGES.

Mr. WENTWORTH obtained leave to postpone the Bill for the regulation of Hackney Carriages till Friday next.

INDECENT ASSAULTS BILL.

Mr. WENTWORTH obtained leave to postpone the Indecent Assaults Bill till Friday next.

LIEN ON WOOL BILL.

Mr. WENTWORTH moved that the Lien on Wool Bill be read a third time.

Bill read a third time and passed, and ordered to be presented to His Excellency the Governor for the Royal assent, by the Speaker, the Colonial Auditor, and the Attorney-General.

DISTILLATION.

The order of the day being called for hearing of counsel at the Bar of the House on behalf of Mr. Lord, in reference to the Distillation Bill before the House, It was moved and seconded that the learned counsel be called in.

Mr. BROADHURST having been introduced to the Bar by the Serjeant-at-Arms, addressed the Speaker. Their honorable House having assented to the petition of Mr. Lord, to be heard by counsel, in reference to the Distillation Laws Consolidation Amendment Bill, which had been introduced to the House during the session, he had now the honour of appearing before them on Mr. Lord's behalf, and in bringing forward those prominent features of the Bill at which Mr. Lord felt aggrieved, he should endeavour to make his observations as brief as possible, as he felt such a course would be alike best for the interest of his client, and in respect to the House, not to abuse the indulgence that had been granted to him. The Bill was entitled, "A Bill to consolidate and amend the laws relating to the distillation and rectifying of spirits," and first he must throw himself on the indulgence of the House, for although they had consented to postpone the Bill longer than it was perhaps convenient, still it was not long enough to give him time to consider sufficiently a Bill of such voluminous details, so numerous in its clauses, and so highly technical in its character. He said it with the greatest respect, but he believed that even the House could hardly understand this Bill, that they could not be familiar with its technical words, and what would be its practical operation, for these could only be understood by scientific persons, or practical distillers. Every distiller knew that he must in the pursuance of his trade submit to very many harrassing and painful restrictions. That for the benefit of the public it was necessary that he should be subject to all the hardships which the intricate machinery of the Excise laws involved; but he also imagined that it would be the anxious wish of every British Legislature, that these restrictions should not be more oppressive,—should not be more vexatious than was absolutely required for the public good. He should abstain from any remarks on the general policy of such laws, but would state this, that although with regard to the general community the Bill was a public one, yet with regard to Mr. Lord, it assumed distinctly and strictly the aspect of a private measure, and this because whilst it affected all except him in one common way, it affected him peculiarly and personally. The object of the Bill was, to make distillers pay duties for all the spirits they distilled according to their strength, and if it could be shown that this object could be effected in a way much shorter, much simpler than that provided in the 148 clauses of the present measure, he must presume that the House and the Government would gladly dispense with such clauses as were not necessary or conducive to the end to be attained, and it would therefore be his duty to show, on behalf of Mr. Lord, that this Bill in its present shape would not have the effect of protecting the revenue and the public, whilst it would be very vexatious to the distiller. In fact he had been instructed that were the Bill without the title submitted to men conversant with the practice of distilling, that nine persons out of ten would unhesitatingly state its title to be, "An Act to abolish Distillation in New South Wales." He was further instructed that if the Council would examine competent witnesses on the subject, they would find that many of the clauses rendered the process of distillation actually and physically impossible. He must believe that it was not the intention of the House to abolish distillation at present, but that this Act was designed to prevent distillation without imposition on the public, but it certainly was not fitted to carry out this object. Mr. Lord stood in this position. He had proposed to become a distiller, knowing the ordinary restrictions of excise which he would have to encounter, and he was willing to submit to those restrictions. He would also state that he came before them in perfect integrity, conscious that these restrictions, and all others that were requisite to the public good, must be submitted to; but still anxious not to be bound by provisions to which it was impossible to conform. Mr. Lord had thus prepared himself under the Act at present in force, to which, although sufficiently vexatious, he was willing to conform. He believed there were only two distilleries within the county of Cumberland, if not in the whole colony, and Mr. Lord was the quasi owner of one of them. He wanted to distil; but was met by an Act which rendered it impossible for him to do so. The Bill bore on the interests, he could hardly say of a class, but of individuals, more than was necessary, and he did not believe that it could be the wish of the House that it should do so. The question of these restrictions in distillation had evidently been one of great difficulty on which to legislate. He found in the preamble of the proposed Bill, that it repealed six Acts, the first no older than the third year of the present reign, being the 3rd Victoria, No. 9. The other Acts were the 5th Victoria, No. 16; the 7th Victoria, No. 8; the 7th Victoria, No. 27; the 8th Victoria, No. 10; and the 9th Victoria, No. 26. The object of the present Bill seemed to him to be little else than to put all these Acts in one, as the six Acts contained only 160 clauses altogether, while the present Act contained 148. If they did not know how necessarily strict the Excise laws were required to be, it would seem in a free country that the certificate of three Justices of the Peace as to the character of the distiller would be enough; and that the Government would be glad to allow such a man to distil, knowing that though he did so distil for his own purposes, that he would, by properly discharging his duties, do good to the country at large by employing many men, and by consuming grain the produce of the colony. But the certificate of the three magistrates was not enough; they were also bound to enter into a recognizance of £500 and find sureties to the like amount, though neither of these provisions were deemed necessary in the Imperial Act. But even this was not enough, but a license fee of £50 must be demanded, whilst the license fee under the Imperial Act was only £10. This, Mr. Lord thought, was a grievance. He did not object to the required certificate—he did not object to the recognizance; but he thought this tax in the shape of license fee, though even that he was ready to pay, was grievous and oppressive. Even with the character he was required to substantiate he did not complain that the Government should still keep its eye upon him, because though honest now, he might turn smuggler. But the Government was not content with that, but said that he might not go and distil on such premises as he liked. Under the Act 9th Victoria, the present Act, a wall was required round the whole of the distillery, and the Glenmore distillery was according to the provisions of that Act. The wall was all round, with one entrance, so that there was no difficulty in seeing what sugar went in and what spirits came out. If this was accomplished, he supposed the ends of the Act would be satisfied; and he was instructed, that if the House would take evidence on the matter, they would find that the wall was all that was required. He would describe the distillery in a rough way. Within a high wall stood a large building of three or four stories; in the lower one the sugar was placed, and mixed up with water in wash-tubs, and when this mixture had been properly mashed up, it was pumped up into coolers in the top story, where the liquor became what was technically called worts. It remained there till it became in a fit state to be sent down through pipes into large vessels called vats, and there became what is called wash. It was then again conveyed into the wash charger, from thence into the stills, which were all in the same room as the wash charger, and being distilled in the still, travelled through the worm into the receiver. Thus it would be seen that the stills were all under one roof. But under the proposed Bill it was thought this wall was insufficient. The 9th clause, which was pretty much the same with the existing act, provided:—

And be it enacted, That no license to distil spirits shall be granted or renewed, unless it be certified by the Colonial Architect, or other person appointed by the said Governor to grant such certificate, that the wall surrounding the premises within which the business of distillation is to be carried on, is built of strong and durable materials; that no portion of it is of less height than ten feet from the ground; that the surface of the wall is smooth, and that it is, in the opinion of the person granting the certificate, sufficient for the purposes of security intended by this Act; that there is a space of five feet between it and the distillery building; that there is but one entrance through it, and that such entrance is secured by a closely pannelled door or gate, not less in height than the full height of the wall; and that such door or gate is provided with sufficient locks or fastenings.

But with a jealousy bordering almost on Turkish jealousy, the tenth clause provided additional security.

And be it enacted, that no license shall be granted for the distillation of spirits, unless it be certified by the Colonial Architect, or other person appointed by the said Governor to grant such certificate, that the still or stills, for which a license is sought to be obtained, are erected and placed in houses not less than thirty-two yards from any other house, and that the premises in which the said business shall be carried on, shall be surrounded by a wall not less than ten feet high, and not less than forty-eight feet from the still-house enclosed thereby; and there shall not be more than one entrance into the said premises: Provided, nevertheless, that such distilleries as are licensed previously to the passing of this Act shall not be affected by the provisions of this clause, as regards the distance from any other house, or from the surrounding wall.

It certainly appeared to him that one of these two clauses had crept into the Act by mistake, and he did not know which the present licensed distillers were to be bound by. If the latter, it would be almost impossible to carry it out, as the stills would have to be removed at an immense expense, whilst next year a yet new Bill might enact that he should have a separate house for each still. Mr. Lord would be mad to enter into the trade under such circumstances. He did submit, that the present licensed distillers having complied with the provisions of the existing Act, ought to be exempted from these fresh alterations. He was informed that night and day there was constantly an officer living on the premises, besides their being always open to the visits of the Inspectors. This Mr. Lord did not complain of, nor of other precautions, such as having a man on the premises, pipes, &c., provided under the 13th clause of the Act, the breach of which was punishable with a penalty of £200. It was hardly possible to conceive an Act more penal in its character than this, for a majority of the clauses carried penalties, most of them of £200. The Government surely did not wish to keep the licensed distillers in continual dread of these penalties, without they were necessary for the public good. He did not wish to speak disrespectfully of the framers of the Act, they had evidently considered the subject, but it appeared to him that they had fallen into the error of framing a compilation of clauses from colonial and English acts, instead of framing an act to meet their own purposes. The law as it prevailed in England, the 9 George 4, required no wall round the premises at all; no certificate, no recognizance, and the license fee was only £10. Therefore, as he was instructed, the wall was a sufficient protection against fraud, without all the complex machinery required in England, where they had no walls. Immense sums had been expended in making the colonial distilleries comply with the Acts passed in the colony, until they were at present, totally unfit for any purpose but distilling, and therefore if prohibition to distilling were enforced, the premises must be still on Mr. Lord's hands. Isolated as they were, with proper watchfulness, with a map showing at a glance every feature of the distillery, it was impossible but that an officer always on the spot must see all the sugar that went in, and all the spirits that went out. But they were not content that people should go out—that they must go out one way only, where they must be seen, but had introduced restrictions into the interior of the distillery, justified in England where there was no other method of detecting fraud, except these mere scientific tests, which the technical clauses of the Bill involved; but not justified here, where all chance of fraud might be prevented more effectually by the simple physical means that had been provided. They must recollect, too, that there was not an officer always in the distilleries in England,—it was impossible there should; and it was equally impossible that they should be encircled with high walls; but both precautions were taken here, and these supplementary precautions, were adopted not because they were necessary to their circumstances, but because they were required by the totally different circumstances of England. The present Act was quite sufficient for all purposes of protection against fraud, and this restraint the distillers were ready to bear, and since the physical restraint of walls, bolts, and bars was more effective than any other. It might indeed be said that other distilleries would arise—this was not very likely—as under the 5th clause of the Act it was provided that each still must be capable of holding 2000 gallons, and as there was no such still in the colony, and as such a still could not be worked here to advantage, it was not likely any man would choose to embark his capital in the trade. It would too, in an economical point of view, be much cheaper to have officers constantly watching these distilleries than to have officers who would be able to carry out all the machinery of the late clauses of the Act. In England, they must have officers to enforce these clauses, it was the only test they had; but here it was most grievous to have two sets of precautions, one of which was perfectly unnecessary. The existing Act was of few clauses, the proposed one had 148—the additional ones being chiefly taken from the Imperial Act, and these were those complained of as unnecessary—clauses that could do no good. The 52nd and 53rd clauses were peculiarly annoying. They were—

LII. And be it enacted, that every cock required by this Act to be kept or used, shall be made and constructed in such manner as shall be from time to time approved of by the Chief Inspector of Distilleries; and if any cock required by this Act to be kept or used shall be made, constructed, or used otherwise, or differently than as at that time shall be directed, prescribed, or approved of by the Chief Inspector of Distilleries, the distiller or rectifier by whom such cock shall be kept or used, shall forfeit and pay the sum of fifty pounds.

LIII. And be it enacted, that every distiller or rectifier shall, at his own expense and charge, provide, maintain, and keep the several utensils, cocks, pumps, pipes, and troughs, which are required by this Act, and shall also provide, maintain, and keep, at his own expense and charge, proper and sufficient fastenings for securing the several cocks and plugs required by this Act to be secured, and for securing the covers of all belonging to the chargers and receivers hereinbefore mentioned respectively, and also for securing the furnace doors, pumps, safes, pipes, vessels, and utensils permitted, allowed, or required for the purposes mentioned in this Act.

They subjected the distiller to a great deal of unnecessary expense and uncertainty: for what one inspector might approve another might disapprove. He now proceeded to a class of clauses which he should call technical clauses and on these clauses he felt persuaded that the Council could never arrive at any proper conclusion without the evidence of scientific and competent men. There were provisions in these clauses, he was instructed, that would render it absolutely impossible to distil, that were of such a nature that it would render it an act of insanity in any man to embark in the trade. The 74th and 75th were two of these clauses:—

And be it enacted, that as soon as the back or backs specified in the notice last aforesaid shall have been filled or set up, or within two hours after such notice shall have been given to the officer on duty, the distiller, or his servant, shall deliver to the officer on duty a declaration in writing, specifying the number of the back or backs into which such wort shall have been conveyed, and the specific gravity of such wort, and the quantity thereof; that is to say, the number of inches not occupied or wetted by the worts, being the space between the upper edge of the dipping place of such back or backs and the surface of the worts; and no yeast or barm, or other matter or thing capable of causing fermentation, shall be added to or mixed with the worts, or allowed to be in such back or backs for the space of two hours next after such worts shall have been collected in such back or backs, and after such declaration shall have been given thereof as aforesaid, unless the officer on duty shall within such two hours have ascertained and taken an account of the specific gravity and quantity of such worts; and if any worts shall be conveyed into and collected in any fermenting back or backs in any other manner than as is herein directed, or if such declaration shall not be given as is herein required, or if any untrue declaration shall be given of the specific gravity or quantity of any such worts, or if any yeast, barm, or other matter or thing capable of causing fermentation shall be so added to or mixed with any worts, or allowed to be in any such back or backs contrary hereto, then, and in each and every such case, the distiller shall forfeit and pay the sum of two hundred pounds.

And be it enacted, that if at any time beyond six hours after any such declaration as aforesaid shall have been delivered, the specific gravity of any such worts or wash shall be found to exceed the specific gravity specified in such declaration by five per centum; or if the quantity of any such worts or wash shall be found to exceed by five per centum the quantity of wort mentioned in such declaration as the quantity collected as aforesaid, then, and in each and every such case, such distiller shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds.

Now, he was informed that nearly all spirits distilled in the colony were distilled from sugar. But the material was very different to that used in England; and this combined with atmospheric influence, would render what was quite safe and right there, quite the contrary here. The process of fermentation required to be aided here by artificial means, and if this delay was allowed to take place the liquor would be turned to vinegar. What reason was there for this interference with the process of distillation? It was not pretended that it was to regulate the quality of the spirit distilled, but merely to prevent fraud, which was more effectually prevented another way. He would most strenuously urge upon the Council not to allow this Act to pass until the evidence of scientific men had been taken on these clauses. The 91st clause, too, was very objectionable, providing for the mode of charging duties. It was proposed that the option should be given of charging the duty on the spirit, or on a quantity of wash calculated to be capable of producing so much spirit. But if, as he contended, it was quite easy to ascertain exactly what quantity of spirit left the distillery, and at what strength what the good of providing this alternative? He contended these clauses were unnecessary and vexatious, and that many of them rendered the distiller responsible for what were the inevitable acts of nature. He earnestly, but respectfully, pressed upon the House to take these matters into consideration, and to take evidence which would satisfy them of the validity or invalidity of the objections he had taken to the Act. If they were valid objections he was sure the House would not act so unjustly to Mr. Lord as to pass what would be an act of prohibition to him, without the shadow of benefit to the public. The Act now was, to use a distiller's expression, "wash," and it would have to be distilled, and doubly distilled, in Committee before it could be made effectual to the simple purpose for which it was intended. The learned counsel then withdrew.

MASTERS AND SERVANTS.

The House went into Committee on the Masters' and Servants' Act, and proceeded as far as the first nine clauses, which were passed with a few verbal alterations.

The Council then resumed, and the Chairman reported progress, and obtained leave to sit again on Tuesday next.

PUBLICANS' BILL.

Mr. WENTWORTH obtained leave to postpone the further consideration in Committee of the Publicans' Bill, till Friday next.

The Council adjourned at seven o'clock till three o'clock on Tuesday.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROMOTION OF THE FINE ARTS IN AUSTRALIA.

FIRST EXHIBITION.

SINCE the publication of our running commentary of Wednesday we have received a note from "One of the Committee," requesting us to state, with reference to our remarks on Nos. 16 and 17, that the Committee resolved to receive in all cases, without comment, the assigned authorship of the paintings, although in many cases the mistakes were both evident and absurd. We beg to assure the writer that we had no intention of reflecting on the taste or judgment of the Fine Arts Committee. We thought we had guarded ourselves from such an imputation by our prefatory remarks,—we know the members of the Committee too well to believe that such a mistake could have occurred in the catalogue through ignorance. We have all along given the members of Committee credit for their taste and perseverance; but it would have been surprising if such a catalogue could have been concocted in a single day without a few slips of the pen. We may here state that we consider ourselves as liable to be mistaken in our judgment of the paintings as any member of the Committee. Ou remarks are not certainly thrown off at random—we have had the benefit of professiona assistance to fortify our own opinions; but w never were so insane as to believe that w could speak as we thought of the paintings and still speak so as to please all parties.

32. The Marriage of St. Catherine—Janssens—We see nothing in the picture to warran the title. To us it appears more like the mar riage of some warrior; nor does the presenc of the cupids shake our belief. A good ol picture, well composed.

33. A River Scene—Vandervelde.—All tha remains of a genuine picture we believe. From its elevated position we can't say mucl of its details, but the composition seems good.

34. Æneas and his Family escaping from th Burning of Troy—Frederico Barroccio—with a Engraving of the same by Agostino Carracci.—The largest and, we should imagine, about th most valuable painting in the exhibition. A undoubted original by a celebrated maste When first exhibited it was so dark that w had to refer to the print for the subject. It ha now been varnished, and we are enabled t look better into it. A first-class picture drawing, composition, grouping, and accesso ries, all excellent. It has been re-touched w think, in the back ground; but the chie group is as it came from the hands of the mas ter—barring the dirt. The light is chiefly re flected from the flames of the burning city Broad effective force of light and shade. Th colouring, particularly the shadows, not im proved by the dust of three hundred year If the painting were ours we should have th varnish removed, and the colours brought ou by careful cleaning. The engraving is excel lent, scarce, and valuable.

35. Virgin and Child, with St. John—after Murillo.—After a good picture—a good copy, by an old hand. The transparency of the back ground gone.

36. Landscape — Artist unknown — A clever sketch, by a clever artist. Good effect—good feeling—fine repose.

37. Fête Champêtre—Watteau —A characteristic painting, by a fantastic but elegant master, a very agreeable effect, easy and graceful; its greenness is occasioned by an accumulation of varnish on the blue and grey tints.

38. Peasants Travelling—Karl de Jardin.—An original, but not a very good specimen of the master; colouring good.

39. The Fortune Teller—Kidd.—A pleasant conceit well delineated, the light well thrown, drawing and composition good.

40. Tempé, the Seat of A. B. Spark, Esq.—J. S. Prout—An example of Prout's power of transmutation. We question whether such a picturesque view of Tempé could be seen except by an artist's eye.

41. The Idle Boy—Artist unknown.—A very clever sketch of a very idle dog.

42. Portrait of Rear Admiral Sir Arthur Farquhar—Watson.—A pleasing portrait of a gallant officer now no more.

43. Portrait of a Gentleman—John Irvine.—A very good characteristic portrait, well drawn and painted.

44. Greek Girl Preparing for the Toilet—Goddess.—A prize painting, a pretty and pleasing picture, but placed where it is (and the remark applies to Nos. 57 and 63) it loses some of the effective force which it possessed in a room by itself. The face and the hands are very delicately drawn, and the drapery well disposed; the arrangement of colour and general toning good. Nothing Greek about the figure but the name.

45. Italian Landscape—Dessmen.—Rather brilliantly coloured, distance well managed, composition good.

46. Sea-piece—Artist unknown.—A clever dashing sketch, sea painted with freedom, very liquid, and ships boldly drawn.

47. A Portrait—Janssens.—A chef d'œuvre: admirable head—reality itself—beautifully and carefully drawn and well preserved, and the dress minutely elaborated.

48. A View near Runnymede—Stark.—Rather cold in tone, but admirably handled, a prize picture.

49. The Cottage Girl—after Rembrandt.—An old and clever copy of the larger original (a square picture) in the Dulwich Gallery—strong effect even from the high position which it occupies; the softness and breadth of Rembrandt's light somewhat gone from the ground having lost its transparency. Over varnished.

50. Portrait of the late Sir Francis Forbes—Briggs.— Well drawn—easy position, and striking likeness—three important features in a portrait; but the picture wants toning, or it is hung in a very bad light

51. Portrait of the Hon. Mrs. Keith Stewart, daughter of Sir Charles and Lady Mary Fitz Roy—Rippengille.—A beautiful unaffected portrait of a lovely aristocratic looking girl, perhaps one of the most generally admired pictures in the room—well drawn and delicately painted; a pleasing picture from a fine model. Worthy of a valued place among its possessors' household gods.

52. Children and Fruit—Gillemans.—An exquisite painting; figures and fruit and landscape all good—effective at a distance and loses nothing by the closest inspection.

53. Landscape and Sheep:—54. Rustic Landscape—Smith.—Two pretty bits; the trees laid in with considerable skill, and the sheep well drawn.

55. Girl Praying—from Murillo.—We doubt it, but still it is a good picture, both in drawing, colouring, and effect.

56. Portrait of a Gentleman.—A fair performance and good likeness.

57. The Gow Chrom reluctantly conducting the Glee Maiden to a place of safety—R. S. Lauder.

63. The Italian Bowlers—M'Innes. Our columns have already been devoted to a lengthened description of these two prize pictures. We still consider them fine paintings; but neither of them has gained in value by being placed in their present position. The colouring of 63 will not stand a comparison with the surrounding works of antiquity. The subject is too large for the canvas.

58. A Female Head—Caravaggio.—A striking bold original, of a powerful master. The colours might have been laid on with a trowel. Admirable expression—evidently a study from life—and almost as fresh as it came from the easel 350 years ago.

59. A Scotch Landscape—View of the Waters of Leith—by a Lady.—A true and characteristic sketch; cold in effect, but boldly drawn; a pretty piece of romantic scenery. While our amateurs can produce such painting as this, we need not fear for the progress of our society.

60. A Landscape—Artist unknown.—We believe this is called a copy; it may be, but we should not quarrel with one who called it an original. It is an admirable picture; boldly and correctly designed and painted.

61. A Sea-piece—Artist unknown.—A bold and clever sketch in the manner of 116.

62. The Harriet and Asp off Torbay.—A large picture; correctly drawn, but feeble and cold in effect; nothing striking in the disposition of the light and shade.

64. Administration in the Wilderness—Murillo.—A clever performance, whoever be the author. Colouring clear, and well preserved, the treatment of the figures betrays the hand of a master; a picture well toned—a singular design—the table cloth and wine cooler seem rather queer accessories in the wilderness.

65. Landscape, Ruins, Morning—Des Palliere.—A poor performance, hard outline, harsh effect.

66. Interior with Figures—Artist unknown.—Composition and light and shade good—heavy in the colour.

67. The Mother's Grave—James Geess.—A simple story, simply and gracefully told, clearly painted, and well grouped. It would bear a little glazing, we think.

68. Landscape with Bridge—O'Connor.—Bold original treatment, broad effect of light and shade.

69. Portraits—Sir Godfrey Kneller.—Characteristic of the artist and his times; stiff, formal and dull. We have our doubts about the genuineness of the picture, but giving it the benefit of the doubt does not add much to its praise.

70. Apollo and Daphne, after Carracci.—Good composition and colouring, clever foreshortening; a fair copy, but rather heavy in effect.

71. Portrait of a Bishop of Trieste, after Vandyke—John Irvine.—A fair copy of an admirable original.

72. Landscape and Figures, after Berghem.—A good copy, from an original picture.

73. An old Man Reading—Artist unknown.—Somewhat in the manner of Gerard Dow, but a very middling performance.

74. Rural Courtship—Passmore. — Skilfully painted, and finely toned; good composition, light and shade.

75. A Study of a Head—Artist unknown.—Beautifully drawn and painted: in good preservation, light admirably thrown on the face.

76. Venus and Adonis—Runciman.—A dash of the Fuseli School; the composition and the colouring good, but the drawing faulty. It is not the Venus nor the Adonis of poetical antiquity.

77. Portrait of a Gentleman; 78. Portrait of a Lady; 79. Portrait of a Young Lady—Forbes.—Not highly finished, but bold and clever portraits, by an artist who has a masterly use of his tools.

80. Portrait of Key Sing, nephew to the Emperor of China, and Imperial Commissioner.—Lamqua.—A very characteristic head, correct drawing; but no transparency in the shadows.

81. A View of Snowden, North Wales—Artist unknown.—Good composition, but the light on old Snowden too glaring, and not carried through the picture.

82. An Allegorical Painting—after Rubens.—The Holy Family, with a presentation of Saints. We can discover, we think, St. George, St. John, and St. Sebastian, but we cannot unriddle the allegory; an old, middling copy, from a fine painting.

83.—Autumn—Artist unknown.—Clear, forcible colouring; effective picture.

84. Judgment of Solomon—An imitation of Rubens—Jordaens.—A middling copy of Rubens's celebrated picture.

85 and 105. Portrait of a Lady, and Portrait of a Gentleman—Westall.—Two undoubted Westalls, strong and clear colouring, but tame and feeble effect, from deficiency of shadow;—this deficiency much more perceptible in the male figure.

86. A Landscape, with Cattle and Figures—Zuccarelli.—A genuine picture, the figures and cattle excellent, and almost too bold for the soft elaborated landscape.

87. A Landscape with Cattle — Smith.—A pretty bit, nicely toned effect, disproportion in size of figures.

88. Woman Asleep—Artist unknown.—Better designed than executed. Light and shade not amiss.

89. Portrait of a Gentleman—Artist unknown.—An excellent painting, good and effective in all respects.

90 Muscipula—after Sir Joshua Reynolds.—A fair copy of a celebrated picture. It is a treat to look even on a copy of Sir Joshua. What breadth of light and shadow.

91. A Composition—the Landscape by Zuccarelli, the Cattle and Figures by a contemporary Artist.—An original, the figures and cattle, though not equal to those in 86, match better with the landscape.

92. A Landscape—Macneil M'Leay.—A pretty landscape, admirably treated.

93. Virgin and Christ—Artist unknown.—Some good points about this picture; the anatomy of the dead Christ good—composition rather formal. The effect is rendered somewhat harsh by the colours sinking into the ground.

94. Sea-piece—Ships in a Calm—Vandervelde.—An undoubted original; painted with the usual care and skill of the master. Fine sky—great harmony. A capital study for our juvenile marine painters.

95. Portrait of Dr. M'Crae—John Irvine.—A pleasing and imposing painting at a distance. A closer examination shows that the figure is not in a graceful nor easy attitude; the horse is incorrectly drawn—particularly the hind quarters; the dog is admirable. The tone of the picture is good.

96 St. Nicolo—Artist unknown.—A fine old picture; the canvas wants stretching; composition good, and the torch light well diffused over the group. The drawing and colouring are not very good.

97. A Dutch River, frozen, with figures—Artist unknown.—If this is not a genuine Isaac Ostade it will pass for one marvellously well. Look at the tone of the picture—look at the disposition and drawing of the figures; above all, look at the white horse, and the leafless trees, and tell us not that the artist is unknown.

98. We think it will be advisable in our next exhibition to keep the works of our colonial artists and amateurs separate and distinct from the rest of the catalogue.

99. The Holy Family—Artist unknown.—A good old painting—drawing, grouping, and general treatment good. Harsh from sinking of colours.

100. Portrait of a Lady—Artist unknown.—The companion of 89—evidently done by the same hand; equally good in all respects. A fine young couple, all of the olden time.

SYDNEY MARKETS.—Friday.

Wheat.—We have received a full supply during the week, and the price of the best colonial ranges from 4s to 5s per bushel. No sales of Van Diemen's Land to report, but importers are asking 5s 6d to 6s.

Bran.—8d per bushel wholesale, 9d per bushel retail.

Biscuit—No 1 cabin, 19s; No 2 ship, 15s per cwt.

Maize.—There has been a large supply received coastwise during the week, in consequence of which the buyers are holding back. The prices charged at the wharfs are from 1s 6d to 1s 8d per bushel; ten loads which have paid dues at the Campbell-street market, being a large weekly supply from the interior, sold at the above prices. The retailers are charging from 1s 10d to 2s 3d per bushel, but the general retail price is 2s per bushel.

Oats.—Van Diemen's Land oats are from 4s to 4s 6d wholesale, and colonial oats from 2s 3d to 2s 9d per bushel, in quantities. The retail prices are—Van Diemen's Land oats from 4s 9d to 5s 6d, and colonial, 3s to 3s 6d per bushel.

Barley.—There is still but little doing in either description of barley. The wholesale price of English is from 3s to 3s 6d, and colonial from 1s 8d to 2s per bushel. English barley is retailing at from 3s 9d to 4s per bushel, and colonial from 2s 3d to 2s 9d. Some mixed samples are retailing for English at 3s 6d per bushel.

Hay—108 loads have been on the stand during the week—some very inferior, and other loads very good. The average price is about £4 4s per ton; the extreme prices are from £3 15s to £5 per ton.

Straw.—Ten loads have paid dues; the prices have ranged from 30s to 40s per ton. The general price was 36s per ton; the retail prices are from 2s 2d to 2s 6d per cwt.

They are charging from 5s 6d to 6s 6d per cwt. for Van Diemen's Land potatoes; those from Circular Head are in demand at from £4 to £4 10s per ton. Dried onions are very plentiful at from £10 to £13 per ton, and from 16s to 18s per cwt., also from 2d to 3d per lb.

Fruit.—Twenty-two loads have been received since last report, mostly oranges and lemons. The prices of other sorts are—fowls 2s 6d to 3s per pair, geese 5s each, turkeys from 4s to 10s each, teal 2s 6d per brace, black ducks 5s per brace, pigeons 1s 6d per dozen, rabbits 5s per pair, and eggs 1s to 1s 2d per dozen warranted.

Dairy Produce.—About 4½ tons of cheese has been received from the interior, and was sold to the stall-holders at from 3½d to 4d per lb. That made by Gilbert Warren, in the Yass district, as well as a small lot bacon, about 16 cwt., cured by him, appears superior in quality as well as cleanlier got up, than any which has been sent to market for some time past. The wholesale prices of bacon are from 4½d to 5d per lb; 1½ ton of butter has been sold in lots at from 10d. to 11d. per lb. The retail prices are—cheese, 4½d to 8d per lb; bacon, 8d to 10d; colonial ham, 10d to 1s, and English ham, 1s 2d to 1s 3d per lb; Glenlee butter, 1s 6d per lb. Cattle, Sheep, &c.—The carcass butchers are giving from 35s to 55s per head for fat cattle; the average price of a good fat bullock is about 40s. Most of the cattle at the slaughter houses, yesterday, appeared to be in but indifferent condition. Fat sheep, fit for slaughter, are realising from 5s. 6d. to 7s. per head; stall fed calves are in request at from 17s. 6d. to 22s. 6d. each; fat pigs are plentiful; about 20 head were disposed of at the pound. The prices given for pigs in good condition, range from 3d to 3¼ per lb, on the weight of the four quarters.

Milch Cows. — Good milch cows are reckoned worth £4 4s; the price of this description of stock ranges from 75s to 95s per head; in some cases £5 has been given, but in general, where this was done, a calf under six months was given in.

Horses.—There are few good horses in the market, but what are for sale are commanding fair prices, viz., roadsters from £12 to £16; cavalry horses, from £14 to £18; and strong sound cart horses from £12 to £20. Unless horses of any description are first-rate, it is useless forwarding them to Sydney for sale, as the market is glutted with inferior horses, for which no buyers can be found at any price

Butchers' Meat.—There is a good supply, and in general of the best quality, at most of the stalls. The wholesale prices are—beef, from 1d to 1½d; mutton, 1½d to 1¾d; veal and pork, 3d to 4d; and suet 2¾d to 3d per lb. The retail prices are—beef, 1½d to 2d per lb; mutton, 2d to 2½d; veal and pork from 5d to 6d per lb.; suet, 3½d to 3½d per lb.; salt beef, 1½d to 2d per lb.; and salt pork, 4d to 4½d per ditto; salt tongues, 1s 6d to 1s 9d each, and lard 8d to 10d per lb.

Cedar and Hardwood.—There is a good supply of all qualities of colonial cedar at present in the market. That of inferior quality is from 10s 6d to 12s per 100 feet in log; good cedar is from 12s to 14s per 100, and picked logs of large breadths are from 14s to 15s 6d per 100 feet; cedar inch boards are from 2½d to 3½d per foot; flooring boards are from 10s to 12s per 100 feet, and a large stock in the market; but no decline is expected, as the sawyers in many places in the bush are standing out for an advance in their present prices for cutting; laths are 7s to 8s 6d, and shingles from 9s 6d to 11s 6d per 1000; palings are from 7s 6d to 9s 6d per 1000; felloes, from £2 10s to £3 5s per 100 according to size.

Coals 16s to 17s 6d per ton at the wharfs.

Sundries.—Colonial salt, 50s per ton; lime, 7d to 8d per bushel; bricks, £1 7s 6d to £1 15s per 1000; colonial soap, 22s to 24s per cwt; feathers, 1s per lb.; firewood, 3s to 4s 6d per cart load; honey, retail, 6d to 8d per lb.; green hides, 6s 6d to 7s 6d each.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

PARRAMATTA RACES.

Yesterday was the third and concluding day of "the meet," and a very crowded assemblage was present: all sorts of vehicles, from the humble cart with its one Lack, to the aristocratic "four in hand," brought an overcrowded load, to say nothing of the ordinary and extraordinary public conveyances from Sydney being equally circumstanced, whilst the Comet steamer being literally crammed, contributed largely to the numbers present, amongst whom were the representatives of every rank and class in the colony.

A few minutes before the hour appointed for the start for the first race, His Excellency drove on to the Course, and was received by the judge, the stewards, and clerk of the Course. Sir Charles was accompanied by Lady Mary, Mrs. Thomson, Mrs. Dawson, and Lieutenant Masters, A.D.C., and en suite the member for the Borough and his family.

As there were four races to be run, all of which were from the entrances made expected to be closely contested, no time was lost in commencing the first race.

Cumberland Turf Purse of sixty sovereigns, with a sweepstakes of five sovereigns each added, for all horses carrying weight for age. Three miles. Entrance five sovereigns.

For this race there were four entrances made, namely, Mr. Hely's b. g. Jorrocks; Mr. H. Merrett's ch. g. Foigh-a-Ballagh; Mr. Jones's by. m. Cassandra; and Mr. Roberts's ch. m. Blue Bonnet. The two latter were, however, drawn, and the race therefore was as under:—

Mr. Heley's b. g. Jorrocks, aged, weight, 9 st. 12 lbs., rode by owner	1
Mr. Merritt's ch. gel. Foigh-a-Ballagh, 6 years, weight, 9 st. 12 lbs., rode by Higgerson	2
Mr. Roberts's ch. m. Blue Bonnet, 6 years	dr.
Mr. Jones's by. m. Cassandra, 5 years,	dr.

At the start, the "old horse" shot away, and was, in a few seconds, a good two lengths a-head, but during the run for the first half mile post, Foigh gained about a length, and was evidently hard held, but in the ensuing mile gained, so as to be on passing the Judge's stand, neck and neck with Jorrocks, who now began to give a taste of his quality, and in the next four hundred yards got half a length in advance, and then began to flirt, as it were, with his competitor, leading him at his full speed, but contriving that when the second round of the course was made, to be a good length a-head. Foigh now began to show symptoms of distress, but nevertheless every nerve was strained by him, and the last round of the course was on the part of both horses beautiful racing, and Foigh again gained on the old horse, so as, when nearing the distance post to be nearly neck and neck, but at this stage of the race Jorrocks seemed to snuff the Judges' stand, and made for it, and came in winning by about half a length. Time of the race 5 minutes 51 seconds. Foigh, it has already been stated, showed distress, an appearance which Jorrocks on coming into the weighing yard was not wholly free from.

Second Race.

The Farmers' Plate of forty sovereigns, with a sweepstakes of three sovereigns each added, for all horses carrying weight for age. Mile heats. Entrance, three sovereigns.

For this race there were seven entrances, but Jorrocks and Don John being withdrawn the race lay between the following five.

Mr. Kirwin's bay gel. Robin Hood, 6 years, 9s. 9lbs., rode by Maherty ..	4	4	3
Mr. Tait's bk. h. Whalebone, 3 years, 8s. 8lbs., rode by Cutts	1	3 dr.
Mr. Roberts's ch. m. Blue Bonnet, 6 years, 8s. 9lbs., rode by Badkin....	3	dr.
Mr. Jones's bay m. Cassandra, 5 years, 9s. 5lbs., rode by Dargin	2	1	1
Mr. Merritt's ch. gel. Foigh-a-Ballagh, aged, 9s. 9lbs., rode by Higgerson..	5	2	2

Considerable excitement appeared to prevail with respect to this race, and before the start, the odds were freely offered in favour of Whalebone. At the start Whalebone secured the lead, and was closely followed by Cassandra, Foigh-a-Ballagh, and Robin Hood, who kept well together, and were about a length in the rear, while Blue Bonnet was also a good length behind them. The racing of the whole of the horses for about a-third of the mile was downright hard, but withal splendid work. In the next two hundred yards Blue Bonnet passed Foigh-a-Bollagh and Robin Hood, and gained rapidly on Cassandra, who had been during this time nearing Whalebone, but who, as the last quarter of a mile of the race was approached, made play, and got two lengths ahead of her, in which position he came in, whilst Blue Bonnet closely followed Cassandra, and was half a length in her rear, and in the same situation in advance of Robin Hood, Foigh-a-Ballagh contrived so as to just save the distance, which from the manner in which he was jockeyed appeared to be all that it was intended he should accomplish. The heat was an admirable one, and the time was 1m. 48s. Previous to the commencement of the second heat Blue Bonnett was drawn, and bets considerably varied. Foigh was well known to be an old horse who required being "warmed" to show, and though Whalebone had run and won, yet there was something about his appearance, which showed he was not "all right" and what subsequently transpired evidenced the suspicion was not an erroneous one. At the start, however, for the second heat, Whalebone led, Cassandra being neck and neck with him, followed by Robin two lengths behind, and Foigh considerably further in the rear, who whilst the three first worked away at a slashing pace, kept a very "quiet and even tenor" of his way. The whole of the horses maintained this position for about half-a-mile, when Foigh had evidently got into racing spirit, and shot past Robin, and closed with Cassandra and Whalebone, whereon the latter began to give way, and the mare got a neck in advance, but Foigh as the distance post was reached, "popt his nose in" between them, and very hard and close running ensued till the mile was made, when the three horses came in as noticed above, the first being half a neck in advance of the second, who was similarly situated in respect to the third; Whalebone, however, to be brought to this position, had been for the last quarter of a mile most desperately punished. Robin was nearly a distance behind. Time of heat, 1 minute 50 seconds. Whalebone was now drawn, and Cassandra, Robin, and Foigh lay well together at the start. For the third heat Foigh shewed the intention of being determined for winning, and got about a head of, and kept so for about four hundred yards of Cassandra, when the mare pushed and got a length a-head. Robin also made play, and for a few seconds neared Foigh. Eventually, however, the horses came in—Cassandra a length a-head of Foigh, and Foigh half a distance in advance of Robin. Time of the heat, 1 minute 50 seconds. It will be seen, that in this race there were two withdrawals: Bluebonnet at the close of the first, and Whalebone at that of the second heat. The reasons causing which were as follows:—It will be remembered that on Wednesday (see Thursday's Herald) Mr. Roberts merely started the mare to prevent disappointment, as she had been ill, and was, as it was evident to every observer, lame. The same spirit induced him starting her to-day, and the same reason induced her withdrawal. In reference to Whalebone, it was suspected, at the conclusion of the first heat, the horse was not all right. When the second heat was run there could be no doubt of the fact; and he was found to be in that state that immediate copious bleeding was necessary.

Third Race.—The Maiden Plate of thirty sovereigns, with a sweepstakes of three sovereigns added, for all horses which have never won a £25 prize, carrying weight for age; mile heats; entrance, three sovereigns.

Mr. Gilligan's ch. h. Donizette, 3 years, weight 3 st 8 lbs, rode by Gorrick..........................	0	1	1
Mr. Perry's g. g. Dr. Syntax, aged, 9 st 9 lbs, rode by Ryan	2	0	0
Mr. Sullivan's g.g. Gohanna, 4 years, 8 st 11 lbs, rode by Ivery	0	0	0
Mr. Badkin's ch. g. Nimrod, 4 years, 8 st 11 lbs, rode by Higgerson	0	0	0
Mr. Jones's bay fl. Cressida, 3 years, 7 st 11 lbs, rode by Dargin	3	0	0
Mr. Baxter's bay g. Spanker, 5 years, 9 st 5 lbs, rode by Cutts	0	3	0
Mr. Single's bay h. Cotherstone, 4 years, 8 st 11 lbs, rode by Maharty	0	2	0
Mr. Heley's br. c Snake, 2 years, 7 stone, rode by West	0	0	3
Mr. Warby's bay g. Warrigal, 4 years, 8 st 11 lbs, rode by Ford....	1	0	2

In the above race we have merely given the return of the horses made by the Judge, who placed only the three first, such position as however our own observation assigned them will be found at the end of each heat. At the start for the first heat the Doctor took the lead, closely pursued by Warrigal, and the remaining seven keeping remarkably well together, and no break was made until about the half mile-post, when Warrigal collared and passed Syntax and shot ahead, coming in by about a length and Cressida half a length in the rear; the other horses raced equally rapid with the leader, and came in, there being just such space between them as to constitute a difference in the following order, Spanker,, Gohanna, Cotherstone, Donizette, Snake, and Nimrod. Time of heat one minute fifty-two seconds. For the start for the second heat there were two false moves, but finally when the racers did get away Donizette and Warrigal went off at a slashing pace, the others lying well together at a respectful distance until the three-quarter mile-post was made, when Cotherstone quitted the company of the seven for his leaders, and having got in advance of Warrigal, collared Donizette and kept neck and neck with her for some distance, when Don shot ahead and came in in advance of him by about a length and a-half. In the mean time Warrigal had got passed by Spanker, who came in third and subsequently by Dr. Syntax, Cressida, Gohanna, and Nimrod, but who was in advance of Snake; all the five last-named horses came in well together. Time of heat one minute fifty seconds. At the third heat two false starts again occurred, but when "off," all kept for a quarter of a mile together, when Nimrod started a-head, and had no sooner done so than the example set was followed by Donizette, Spanker, Warragal, Gohanna, and Syntax, all close on each other's quarters; this position was maintained until the three-quarter mile-post, when Donizette took the lead, and Warrigal rapidly passed Spanker; and Snake, until this time all behind, contrived to get third, in which position they came in The places of the other horses, as near as could be observed, were Syntax, Nimrod, Cressida, Gohanna, Spanker, and Cotherstone. Time of heat—1 minute 50 seconds.

This race was throughout well contested; Worrigal surprised many; the horse, it was palpable, was suffering from lameness, which his rapid running in the first heat considerably heightened, and nothing but good bottom and tremendous spirit could have made that play which secured a splendid second in the third heat.

Fourth Race.—The Beaten Stakes of 20 sovereigns, with a entrance of two sovereigns each added; one mile and a half; horses to be handicapped by the stewards.

Some time having elapsed in getting entrances, Mr. Roberts, to make a beginning, entered Blue Bonnet, although she was lame; Don John, Spanker, and Emperor were then entered; but the two last were subsequently withdrawn. The mare, however, true to the "blue," after a few yards running, quickly got four lengths a-head, and gallantly kept three of them, which she was a-head on reaching the Judge's stand.

The race was, therefore—

Mr. Roberts' ch. m. Blue Bonnet, rode by Badkin	1
Mr. Foster's b. g. Don John, rode by Curtis	2

Three cheers having been given for the Judge, Mr. Holden, the first meeting of the Club was at end.

It is impossible for anything to have passed off better than this meeting, or more creditably to the Stewards and the Clerk of the Course, Mr. Watsford, who exerted himself most manfully in putting down those nuisances and annoyances which quadrupeds and bipeds will give. The police also exerted themselves well, and during the whole three days, there was not the slightest disorder, nor did any accident occur; and with praise be it noticed, those pests on a course, the gambling tables, were suppressed.

Great promises have been made of valuable cups being given at the next meeting, by Mr. Nelson Lawson and Mr. Andrew Nash, but the particulars and the terms and conditions on which they are to be competed for, must, from the late hour at which the races concluded, and, consequently, our reporter reached town, be deferred until our next issue.

A GREAT RARITY.

BRISBANE WATER.

TO BE SOLD BY PRIVATE CONTRACT.

THE following very valuable and rapidly improving properties at Brisbane Water.

No. 1. All that piece or parcel of land bounded by the property hereinafter described as No. 2, having the entire frontage to the Broadwater, and upon which is erected an excellent inn, containing twelve rooms, formerly kept by   , but now known as the Queen's Hotel; a six-stalled stable stone built; a well stocked garden, and out houses complete; a wharf which abuts nearly 100 feet into the Broadwater, of sufficient depth alongside for vessels of any tonnage; was constructed at great expense by the former proprietor, and affords every facility for carrying on a first-rate business of any description, which the wants of the district require.

No. 2 All that piece or parcel of land adjoining the above, upon which is erected an excellent dwelling house and stores, formerly the property of Mr. E H. Hargreaves, but more recently occupied by H. S. Greenfell and Co., as storekeepers, &c. Upon this portion there are also three small enclosures well adapted for the growth of the vine, vegetables, &c.; stockyards and outhouses complete; comprising altogether a very compact and eligible premises for carrying on the business of a store.

No. 3. Comprises all those two pieces or parcels of land immediately adjoining the above premises, being Nos.   and   of section No. 37, and containing together one acre and three roods, more or less, with frontage to the Broadwater. A natural wharf comprising the whole extent from the boundary of No. 1, as above described, is formed by the rocks on the shore, and might, by a very small outlay, be made available for boat-building, lime-burning, cooperage, or any other useful purposes; leaving ample space on the remaining portion of the property, from which there is a beautiful view of the harbour and surrounding scenery, for building allotments and the erection of a number of cottages, which will no doubt be required as the population of the district increases.

The proprietor offering the above to the notice of capitalists and intending purchasers, deems it unnecessary to say more respecting the buildings, &c., erected thereupon, than that they originally cost upwards of £2400. The depreciation in value of every description of property since the period referred to, precludes the hopes of realising anything approximating to that amount at present; but he nevertheless feels fully justified in recommending the properties described, as an excellent permanent investment, from the fact that as the demand for tallow casks, for which an unlimited supply of suitable wood can be procured in the district, will be on the increase, and for timber of all descriptions for building purposes, for coasting vessels of all sizes; and, though last not least, for shell-lime, required for smelting the mineral ores, with which the colony abounds, also continues to increase: there can be no doubt that Brisbane Water will resume its former prosperity, and become the chief source from which the abovementioned articles must be supplied.

By all who are acquainted with the locality, it will be readily conceded that no part of the district offers for cooperage, lime-burning, or boat-building purposes, advantages equal to the premises above referred to; besides the advantages a store or an inn could command.

If required, the proprietor will dispose of the whole in one lot. Further particulars may be learnt on application to Mr. George Rattray, Bathurst-street, Sydney. 10462

THIS HIGHLY DESIRABLE PROPERTY, in FOUR LOTS, according to a plan executed by Mr. C. E. Langley, which is on view at the Mart of the Auctioneer, and agreeably to instructions received from Mr. J. N. Brown and Mr. John Holt, Executors of the Estate of the late Mr. Joseph Nobbs, namely:—

LOT 1.

These excellent old-established Business Premises, "THE SWAN WITH TWO NECKS," in the occupation of Mr. Edward Hancock, and in full trade, having a frontage to of 33 feet 4 inches, adjoining Mr. Cooper's premises; and to

of 80 feet 6 inches. The House contains Tap and Tap Room, Hall, Parlour, and Breakfast Room on the ground floor, with Cellar.

The rooms upstairs consist of four spacious bed-rooms, and a

BALL ROOM.

The outbuildings, which adjoin the above in the rear, consist of a pantry, large kitchen, with oven, a store and stabling, &c.

LOT 2.

☞ The position of this property is admirable, being nearly in the centre of the City, and consequently in the immediate vicinity of the Police Office and the Markets in George-street; whilst the Park-street portion is in direct line with William-street, the great outlet to Woolloomooloo, Rushcutter's Bay, &c. These advantages would alone warrant the Auctioneer in recommending it as a first-rate purchase to parties desirous of investing money to a profit. But in addition to these attractions, when it is remembered that George-street is the principal thoroughfare of the City, and commands the whole of the extensive communication with the interior, it will be obvious to every one that this is a property of the highest order, and of very considerable VALUE.
